

(Free read ebook) High Skills: Globalization, Competitiveness, and Skill Formation

High Skills: Globalization, Competitiveness, and Skill Formation

Phillip Brown, Andy Green, Hugh Lauder
*ebooks | Download PDF | ePub | DOC | audiobook

 Download

 Read Online

#3563215 in eBooks 2001-11-15 2001-11-15 File Name: B000VDKFJW | File size: 36.Mb

Phillip Brown, Andy Green, Hugh Lauder : High Skills: Globalization, Competitiveness, and Skill Formation before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised High Skills:
Globalization, Competitiveness, and Skill Formation:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Book was Like new - Very impressive beyond my expectations
By JGA
This book was needed for my research since i am a postgraduate student. I must say that I am very pleased with the quality of the book. Although it is a used book it came to me like new. The delivery was fast and efficient too. I am pleased with this purchase as it really exceeded my expectations!
0 of 0 people found the following review helpful.

Very goodBy JPCVery good

Today, economic success is seen as depending on the creation of a high-skilled workforce. This is the first book to offer a comparative examination of national routes to a 'high skill' economy.

Welcome addition to the literature on educational opportunity and skills. * Widening Participation and Lifelong Learning (Online Journal) * ... an impressive consolidation of previous work done by the three writers on 'high skills' ... makes a very valuable contribution. * Journal of Education and Work * The book's strength lies in its comparative focus on a select sample of economies from the advanced and rapidly developing East-Asian economies of the world. * Journal of Education and Work * ... the analytical framework is extremely useful and can be of help in other national contexts. * Journal of Education and Work *About the AuthorPhillip Brown is a Research Professor in the School of Social Sciences at Cardiff University, UK. He trained as a teacher and youth worker before going to University College, Swansea in South Wales to study for a Ph.D. After working as a researcher at the Institute of Criminology, University of Cambridge, he took a lectureship in Industrial Sociology at the University of Kent. Andy Green is Professor of Education and Co-Director of the Centre for the Wider Benefits of Learning at the Institute of Education. He previously taught in further education colleges in London and the USA and was Senior Lecturer in Education History and Policy at South Thames Polytechnic (1988-90) before joining the Institute of Education in 1990. He has acted as a consultant for a range of national and international bodies including the DFEE, the DTI, the National Skills Task Force, OECD, and CEDEFOP. Hugh Lauder is Professor of Education and Political Economy in the Education Department, University of Bath. He taught in London schools between 1970 and 1976 and was Lecturer and Senior Lecturer at the University of Canterbury, New Zealand from 1979-90. From 1990-5, he was Professor of Education at Victoria University of Wellington.